Kneedles. Kneedless to say (see what we did there?), you wonâ€™t get very far in the world of knitting without some high quality needles. Fortunately, there are a wide range of different models available for you to invest in, with different materials being used to create different effects. For instance, metal needles are far more solid and will last for a lot longer, whereas wooden knitting accessories are far more pliable and easier to manipulate whilst theyâ€™re being used. The best way to work is to test out a few different models and see which ones work best for you, and soon enough youâ€™ll work out the perfect way in which to work.

Yarn and wool. Without doubt another essential in the world of haberdashery, you certainly wonâ€™t get too far in the world without these essential knitting accessories. With a huge range of different colours, materials and density available from most good online stores, thereâ€™s no excuse for not getting out there and finding the perfect yarn for your project. Take the time to make a great choice though, as the wrong choice could scupper a few weeks worth. No-one wants a warm jumper thatâ€™s made out of wafer thin cotton â€“ youâ€™ll need to break out the thick wool for that! Vice-versa, you wonâ want a beautiful summer sari made out of brick-thick black wool. Either way, wool is an essential knitting accessory.

Patterns. Whilst all the knitting accessories in the world can help you get going and start creating, you wonâ€™t get too far without an actual pattern design to work towards. After all, creating items such as jumpers, sweaters, blankets and the like might seem easy, but nearly all of them have some complicated parts to work around (usually the bits around sleeves, collars, and blankets and the like), meaning that a good clear pattern book will guide you in the right direction and increase the quality of the items you create. Itâ€™s also entirely possible for you to create your own patterns should you be that way inclined, and to share them with friends and relatives who also enjoy knitting and sewing.

Machines. Whilst opinion is somewhat divided on the matter of sewing and knitting accessories being based around automatics, thereâ€™s no denying that for certain jobs having a sewing machine or similar can complete tasks far more efficiently than if they were done by hand. If youâ€™ve got the funds to invest in a machine that you believe may be capable of carrying out your work, it could well be money well spent.
