Article published on July 23rd 2012 | Biking

With little less than a week for the 2012 London Olympic Games, those in a last minute rush to acquire 2012 Olympic tickets may be in a quandary. Most Olympic tickets for popular events are sold out. Though there are touts offering 2012 Olympics tickets and illegal websites as well as social networking site members offering Olympic tickets 2012, these avenues certainly are not recommended. If you cannot get tickets to your favorite events, you can consider attending other events at the London 2012 Olympic Games.

Locog is not the only official and genuine avenue to obtain Olympic Games tickets for the 2012 Olympics London games. There are designated authorized ticket resellers all over the world and one can contact the official ATRS in Europe or elsewhere and take a chance should some 2012 Olympics tickets still remain unsold with them. The question is can they get it to you in time for the scheduled event? The London Olympics dates are from 27th July to 12th August. One would need to act fast and get a confirmation from the ATRs before making payment.

Yet another likely source is Co Sport and Sports world, two cross continent ATRs of the London Olympic tickets 2012. Though they report all tickets as sold out they are expecting a fresh lot from Locog and by keeping in touch with them on a daily basis one may yet get a chance to buy 2012 Olympic tickets.

London Olympic tickets are still available for a few events from Locogâ€™s website, the official Olympic tickets London 2012 website. There may be around a million Olympic games tickets for football events available and around 500000 Olympics 2012 tickets in other events like Basketball, volleyball, boxing and weightlifting. A month before the event Locog had announced the likelihood of release of another block of London Olympics 2012 tickets. These would include Olympics tickets 2012 for swimming and athletics events at the London 2012 Olympic Games. These 2012 Olympic tickets constitute last minute cancellations.

Olympic tickets London 2012 can be found from the most unlikely places. ATRs in Finland, Italy, Cyprus, Slovakia and Israel are likely to have some unsold stock of London Olympics tickets. However, it would take fine coordination for the tickets to get to the purchasers in time for the scheduled event at the London 2012 Olympic Games.

If one is desperate for ticket, there is no avenue that should be left unexplored. A number of helpful people with Twitter accounts tweet regularly about availability of Olympics tickets 2012 and it is worthwhile following them and taking a chance. If nothing else succeeds, following their tip might just result in your being able to attend your favorite event at the 2012 Olympics London games.

Travel agents like Thomas Cook may have a number of unsold London Olympic Games tickets lying with them. They have reduced prices drastically for the Olympics tennis tickets. If tennis is your favorite game and if these tickets are still available, you are in luck. Then, if money is no object, Locogâ€™s Prestige Hospitality is also a good source for London Olympic tickets.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/biking-articles/where-to-get-2012-olympics-tickets-for-2012-summer-olympic-games.htm - Article Side

Lenin - About Author:
Author: This article is written by author who provides here best information like Olympics tennis tickets, London Olympic games, London 2012 Olympics Dates etc. Please visit for more details at www.2012tickets.org.

Article Keywords:
2012 Olympic tickets, Olympic tickets, 2012 Olympics tickets, Olympic tickets 2012, Olympic tickets London 2012, London Olympic tickets, buy Olympic tickets, Olympic games tickets, Olympics tennis tickets, tickets to Olympics 2012, Olympics tickets 2012,

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!