Just as clinics and hospitals, specialty surgical centers also require reliable medical transcription service. Medical transcription should be ideally sought from transcription companies that have been in the field for a long time offering value-added services to their clients. When medical transcription is outsourced to such a provider, specialty surgical centers stand to gain substantial benefits.

Different Kinds of Medical Reports Transcribed

A specialty surgical center might require transcription for various patient reports. These include:

â€¢ Different kinds of necessary reports including diagnostic reports â€¢ Preoperative and postoperative diagnoses performed

â€¢ Date of performing the procedure, indication and surgical findings

â€¢ Operative reports

â€¢ Discharge summaries

â€¢ Lab/X-ray reports, and more

Operative report transcription is vital to surgeons. Generating appropriate well formatted, edited, and reviewed medical documents before and after a surgical procedure is crucial. Surgeons who find it a major challenge to transcribe and arrange medical reports due to their hectic schedule can find help from medical transcription service providers.

Medical transcription companies provide invaluable service to specialty surgeons and physicians worldwide. The transcription team in these firms provides accurate medical transcription service, based on each physicianâ€™s demands. To provide clients with exceptional service, a reliable medical transcription company is equipped with advanced technology and sophisticated machines. Besides promising quality in transcription services, companies offer HIPAA (Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act) compliance. Since medical related information is confidential in nature, the service providers take appropriate measures to ensure the security of the data.

Combines Talent with Technology

â€¢ The companies support convenient dictation methods for transcription â€“ digital recorders and toll free telephone â€¢ They accept audio files in any format including WMV, MPG, AVI, MOV, ASF, ASX, RM, SWF, DIC, and extended audio formats: WMA and MP3 â€¢ With the support of web-based software technology, these companies meet various transcription demands â€¢ The transcribed files are cross checked and reviewed by the quality assurance team including proofreaders, editors, and medical experts â€¢ The transcribed files, protected with 256 bit AES encryption, are transmitted via email, fax or FTP (File Transfer Protocol).

Physicians can reduce their workload and focus on their core competencies by outsourcing their medical transcription.

How to Locate a Reliable Medical Transcription Company

To benefit from accurate medical transcription service, specialty surgical centers have to locate a good service provider. You may wonder how to choose between the many medical transcription companies out there. Before making any decision, it is better to do solid research. To make it clear that you are dealing with a reliable company that offers accurate medical transcription service for specialty surgical centers, inquire about the skill and qualifications of transcriptionists offering service for the required specialty areas. When selecting the right provider, there are many factors to be considered including turnaround capabilities, accuracy, and reliability.
