An empty toner cartridge is a small machine that consists of a chip and moulded plastic. A few years ago, a laser toner cartridge had to be dumped after it had used up all of its ink. However, with new processing techniques, manufacturers are now producing recyclable ink toner cartridges. These cartridges are very easy to use and they can be installed into the laser printers with relative ease. A recycle toner cartridge can be refilled up to six times before it reaches the end of its life time.

From a research study, it was revealed that everyday millions of dollars are wasted as a result of dumping empty toner cartridges into the landfill. With around eight cartridges dumped per second, the amount of Carbon Dioxide and Sulphur Dioxide in the atmosphere is reaching alarming levels. To overcome this nagging issue of environment pollution, recycling of empty toner cartridges should be promoted at all levels and to preserve our natural resources reserves, the practice of toner recycling for cash should be given high importance.

There are many ways to recycle an empty toner cartridge. Most of the manufacturers provide unique service of collecting empty toner cartridges from your door step. These companies use empty toner cartridges to manufacture other similar plastic products to save millions of dollars for themselves. If you are someone who does not want to return the toner cartridges to their manufacturing concerns, you could consider selling empty ink cartridges to online cartridge recycling companies, who will pay you a handsome amount in exchange. These agencies provide their clients with a unique and attractive door to door delivery and collection services and buy the valuable time for your other activities. The consumers can also save their time and make extra pennys by selling empty ink cartridges.

Almost all multinationals and other local business recycle used toner cartridges on daily basis. Schools, colleges, universities, hotels, restaurants and even pizza shops are saving millions of dollars by returning these cartridges to the respective recycling companies. If you havenâ€™t had the chance to use a recyclable toner cartridge up till now, you could place your order by using their online ordering system, a phone call or even by an email. On buying a significant number of recycle toner cartridges, these companies will also deliver to your home free of cost.
