Avengers Birthday Party Ideas by Jam

Article published on May 28th 2012 | Advertising

After the debut of the Avengers movie, kids all across the country are begging to have an Avenger themed birthday party. The movie, based on the Avengers comic book, has become a quick hit with a group of superheroes teaming up to fight crime. If your child is asking to have a Marvel Avengers themed party, the first step is to start planning activities to keep the little ones entertained. There are many different Avenger themed activities and party ideas that you can include in your child's celebration.

Birthday Superhero Invites

Invitations are a great place to start when planning an Avengers birthday party, and kids will love the super hero theme. One cute and creative idea for an Avengers birthday party invitation is to have a picture of the birthday child dressed up as their favorite Avenger's character and include it on the invitation. Match the picture with a cute saying that relates to the movie, or superheroes. The common saying in the Avengers comic is "Avenger's Assemble" and can be used on the birthday invitation. Remember to use the Avengers colors as well which are red, white and blue.

Superhero Strength

When it comes to party activities, one fun idea is to have a superhero contest. In the backyard set up a couple of different stations to test the strength of the super hero party goers. For one station, you can make large balls from paper mache or purchase bouncy balls and test how far the kids can throw them. Another idea would be to have a target and have the kids use nerf guns and see if they can hit the mark. You can also get creative with other ideas for how to let the kids show how strong and powerful they are! After each station make sure every child gets a little prize or piece of candy so they feel just like a superhero.

Super Decorations

Another great idea for the Avengers themed birthday party is to have a great set of decorations to really show the theme. The colors of the avengers are mainly red, white and blue, but you can create a little more dazzle by including silver as one of the colors. Take time to purchase posters of all of the characters in the movie and hang them throughout the house along with color coordinated balloons and streamers. You can also decorate each table to represent another one of the superheroes in the Avengers to add a little more to the overall affect.

Every child will be thrilled to have an amazing Avengers themed birthday party! You now have all of the needed party activity ideas, party favors and decorations to make the experience super for your child.
