Roger James Hamilton and Flow of Wealth towards the Individual by Corwin Smith

Article published on December 13th 2011 | Goal Setting

Roger James Hamilton was a part of the system that is completely in control of the economics of the world. But somewhere down the line he broke way from the system and there was a valid reason for this drastic change of allegiance that led to the dawn of a system that brought into light the real connection between the natural flow of the human being and his ability to earn the wealth that he so very much desires. All that he has done is that he has just devised the theories that tell everything that a man needs to know about the real nature, the real essence of wealth and then ultimately what needs to be done to go in search of that wealth.

It all started with the journey that Roger James Hamilton took to go in search of the real system, the real knowledge that would open the doors of wisdom that is so much needed in the present mad rush among men and women towards the creation of wealth. Ask any person on the street no matter in which country that street is present and wherever it is leading, the only reply that you would get in return is that it is the finance that is bothering him the most, and much worse than that that person would be prepared to do anything under the sun to earn that wealth. And the mess that has already been created in this world by the mad rush after money would only get messier with every passing day. And just one word by Roger simply changed the entire perspective of the people across the globe as far as the money, or wealth or finance is concerned.

That one magical word was â€˜Natureâ€™. It is the only word that has the power to bring down the system created by men and also the affection to nourish the systems that are in consonance with it. And that is exactly what Roger James Hamilton discovered while he was on his way to find an original system that could replace the existing system of finance. And what he discovered was the ultimate reality that somehow got hidden in the reams of superficial knowledge propagated by the so called mandarins of the present system of economics.

And from the establishment of the relation of the nature with the activity of wealth creation Roger James Hamilton came out with the concept of â€˜natural flowâ€™ within the real human being. And once that natural flow within the individual is discovered, it would become a lot easier for the individual to earn wealth, and much more than that he would realize that the flow of wealth would continue its journey towards the individual.
