A Philadelphia Auto Accident Attorney who Cares by Hank Aaron

Article published on May 9th 2012 | Business

There are more than six million auto accidents in the United States every year, leading to billions of dollars in damages. This sheer number also causes over a hundred deaths every day, as well as thousands of personal injuries. Such injuries can vary in terms of gravity, and can be as serious as spinal cord injuries, amputations and paralysis. However, not all injuries are physical; car accidents and auto collision can also lead to emotional and psychological trauma.

Numerous reasons have been cited for car accidents and the more common ones include driving under the influence, texting or talking on cellular phones while driving, and bad road conditions. One doesnâ€™t have to be in a car to fall victim â€“ even pedestrians have been involved in auto accidents. Being involved in a car accident can drastically change a personâ€™s life, as well as the lives of their families. This is because in certain instances, these people may be at risk for other types of injuries.

If you or a loved one has fallen victim to a car accident, time to contact a Philadelphia auto accident attorney may be limited. This is because the evidence may no longer be accessible if one takes too much time. Further, the case might be subject to a statute of limitations.

When looking for a Philadelphia auto accident lawyer, you can start by asking around for references. Your friends and colleagues might be able to refer a few names to you. You can also conduct an online search for a Philadelphia auto accident attorney. Read potential attorneysâ€™ backgrounds extensively so you can be sure youâ€™re getting someone you can trust and someone who will really fight for what you deserve.

Depend on a Philadelphia auto accident attorney who cares about your case and has extensive experience in this field of practice. The Law Offices of Robert W. Sink, headed by Rob Sink, offers personalized service to their clients. This Philadelphia auto accident lawyer has been practicing personal injury and complex litigation law for almost two decades already. Rob Sink has advanced training in trial work. He has a Masters of Trial Advocacy Degree, something that less than five hundred lawyers in the country have. He is also a life member of the Million Dollar Advocates Forum for the million-dollar settlements he has won for his clients â€“ certainly a testament to his skill and dedication.

But far more important than his capabilities, this Philadelphia auto accident lawyer treats each client as if they were his own family. Proof of this is that he stays in contact with many of the clients he has had over the past years. He also works on a contingency fee basis for his clients.
