Loral Langemeier offers a Highly Effective Learning Model as the Road Map to Success by Socialmea

Article published on November 26th 2011 | Business

According to Loral Langemeier, financial speaker and author of â€œLoral Langemeier: Millionaire Makerâ€ our own psychological and emotional paradigms, fears, laziness, and ignorance drive our financial persona. We need to release the beliefs that donâ€™t serve us and replace them with those that will support our pursuit of abundance.

The Loral Langemeier Millionaire Maker program provides you with practical advice and guidance regarding business and helps you to achieve financial freedom. Loral Langemeier not only deals with business-related issues but also the personal obstacles that may hinder your success.

Learning is a process of acquiring skill or knowledge. Generally, there are two types of learning models that you can follow. One is an Effective Learning Model that will lead you to successfully accomplish your business targets with fruitful results. The other one is an Ineffective Learning Model that will entrap you in a cycle of disappointment and frustration. The effective model for learning is a pathway that will always have the following sequential sign posts: listening, learning, and doing. This is the easiest route one can take to success. But when we choose the ineffective learning route, involving the lack of concentration and personal obstacles, we end up in bewilderment and disappointment.

You may recognize the Ineffective Learning Model in your life. This model involves the same route as the Effective Learning Model, except that the last sign post of â€œdoingâ€• is found nowhere. Thus, no new results are created. People who experience this type of model are living lives that are frustrating and of repetitive patterns. They wind up having the same results of disappointment every time.

The Loral Langemeier Millionaire Maker program works at the core point that knowledge by itself is not power but just potential. Knowledge combined with action is power. Therefore, the execution of knowledge is critical to success. The greatest culprits for holding us in the Ineffective Learning Model are the reasons, stories, and excuses we tell ourselves and others. We fail to move past knowledge. So get yourself enrolled in the Loral Langemeier Millionaire Maker program and enjoy the benefits of the Effective Learning Model. Loral Langemeier offers a coaching staff that will help you overcome learning hurdles and get you on the path to success in businessâ€”YOUR business.
