Digital Printing by Mary Porter

Article published on July 20th 2012 | Advertising

Donâ€™t let the higher cost per page of digital printing put you off choosing it over the other methods like offset printing. For one thing, the cost involved in setting up the technical steps required in other methods practically negates the pricing issue.

Another great reason for choosing digital printing is in its quick turnaround and the greater flexibility in the type of last minute modifications that can be more easily addressed. In fact, digital printing is well on its way to dominating the printing world, with the ever growing innovations in technology, digital printing now gives closer colour matching and an ability for larger print runs.

Digital Express are a Cape Town-based company who specialise in digital printing, their team work hard to provide a comprehensive and quality assured service with great delivery.

Their digital printing capabilities enable a wide range of services to be offered, with a plethora of printed material on offer, from flyers to mouse pads, t shirt printing to fridge magnets.

Got an upcoming event, looking for a banner to advertise? Digital printing from Digital Express facilitates PVC event banners to be designed and printed to any specifications. For something a little more unique digital printing allows for the printing of light boxes, a great and innovative way of getting your product seen.

Fed up of losing your favourite mug in the office, or tired of dull designs? Use the digital printing services at Digital Express to customise your own. Or if youâ€™re just looking to spice up your apartment and feel that a bit of colour might be the trick, you can use their digital printing services to print yourself some wall art, digital printing straight onto artist canvas.

If youâ€™re considering digital printing then, visit Digital Express online and tell them your specs for a quotation, no job is too small.
