Custom Home Builders in Maryland Recommend These Home Styles by Camilla Devreut

Article published on April 18th 2012 | Business

There are many styles to pick from when deciding on how you want to design your dream home. Custom home builders in Maryland agree you need to know what architectural style best fits your personality.

A good way to get started is to get a sense of the different types of homes you can choose from. Listed below are some of the most popular home styles out there today. When you customize your home be sure to consider all these different designs. Each one offers something unique.

Modern

Modern styled homes strive for an openness and natural connection with nature. These homes are built with glass because the material is solid and transparent. The clear glass creates a free ambiance throughout the house. Also, it allows the eye to have a direct and constant connection with nature.

Other features include:

â€¢ Simple and stripped down floor and wall plans, giving it a clean look

â€¢ Natural lighting from windows and glass walls

â€¢ Large areas of space between structural systems

Spanish

Spanish architectural style was originally seen in parts of California, Texas, Florida, and the Southwest. Today this beautiful home style can be found throughout the country and the world. Its features include:

â€¢ Red-tiled roofs

â€¢ Stucco walls and patios

â€¢ Ceramic floors and stairways

â€¢ Wrought iron ornamentation against smooth white plaster walls

These houses often have dense walls, which keep the inside of the house cool. This makes these homes ideal for warm weathered regions. The doors of these homes are rounded with intricate carvings and the windows are small and placed at unexpected angles.

Asian

Asian home design focuses on simplicity and balance. Color is an important aspect. How color affects us emotionally is taken into great consideration when designing Asian style homes. This style of home goes for clean lines and open space to create an uncluttered and peaceful feel.

When these aspects come together properly, they are meant to create what Asian culture calls feng shui. The idea of fen shui is to create a balance and peace in your home and life.

Other features of Asian architectural style include:

â€¢ Open space to avoid clutter

â€¢ Alcoves to display special art or flower arrangements

â€¢ Natural building materials like limestone tile and blond wood flooring

â€¢ Incorporating nature into the house design (e.g. waterfall sinks)

Custom home builders in Maryland know each client has a unique idea in mind for their dream home. The best home builders will be familiar with these and other architectural styles.

If youâ€™re not sure, ask your home builders for suggestions. Tell them what you like and donâ€™t like about certain styles. This way your builder can come up with a customized plan.

Keep in mind, the best custom home builders in Maryland can blend different styles together. So donâ€™t feel cornered into one specific type of home. Use the different ones out there as reference points. For example, you may like Spanish roofing and doors, but want the natural lighting aspects of modern homes. Not a problem. The idea is to gather your favorite aspects together and present them to your designer.
