Oxfordshire : a Must See for Any Body Touring England by Elissa Joyce

Article published on January 11th 2012 | Travel

England is a country which is spotted with counties, many of which date back to the early years of the 10th century and have a medieval feeling. Oxfordshire comes as a special mention in its list of counties for its natural endowments, architectural specimens of the medieval century and for its cultural history. Its geographical extension covers the River Thames to the south, the Cotswolds to the west, and the Chilterns to the east and the Midlands to the north.

In this region there is a prominent concentration of some of the topmost colleges, oldest universities, performance motors port companies of the world and mind-blowing tourist attractions. Whoever touring England cannot afford to miss the places the county has in offer because these are certainly worth-seeing. In 1972 The Oxfordshire Architectural and Historical Society came into being which is a storehouse for learning the history, architecture, and archaeology of the city of Oxfordshire.

Reasons for Touring Oxfordshire

Not only does the beauty of unspoilt landscapes and splendid view of the hills surrounding this city allures people from every corner of the world to visit Oxfordshire but one can also get completely mesmerised after visiting the historical buildings that this city has in plenty The Oxfordshire Tourist Guide gives detailed information of every nook and corner ranging from the must see-places, hotel accommodations and holiday cottages, food joints and restaurants, transport options, camping sites and many more.

This handbook is well-planned and systematic and is very helpful for those who are planning a visit to this part of England for the first time. In order to give an idea of the grandness and uniqueness of this place some of the noted worth seeing places must be mentioned:

â€¢ The Oxford University : Oxfordshire can proudly boast for having one of the premier universities in the world which is also the oldest university in the English speaking world. It has a beautiful campus which can be seen from the Carfax tower. It has many colleges under its direct affiliation. The dreaming spires of the buildings of Oxford add to its grandeur and beauty.

â€¢ Blenheim Palace :This place has great historical importance as it is the birthplace of Sir Winston Churchill and is a World Heritage Site. One of Englandâ€™s greatest palace and has a great history attached to it. It is certainly a must-see hotels in oxfordshire.

â€¢ Christ Church : As the name suggests this church is a prominent place of worship since the 7th century. The cathedral that exists now has the tomb of St Frideswide. It is a unique example of marvellous sculpting and splendid blend of artistry.

â€¢ Banbury museum : It is situated in north Oxfordshire and its administration is looked after by the Cherwell District Council. The objects in its display clearly highlight the history of the city. Houses 17th century costumes.

â€¢ Abingdon County Hall Museum : It is beautifully built and has permanent collections.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/travel-articles/oxfordshire-a-must-see-for-any-body-touring-england.htm - Article Side

Elissa Joyce - About Author:
Planning a tour to England a hotels in Oxfordshire offers some great stay at very affordable rates. For more details on hotel in Oxfordshire visit signpost.co.uk

Article Keywords:
hotels in oxfordshire

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!