The first and foremost thing you need to do is to check your present health insurance properly. If you have a health insurance in your native country it does not mean that you are protected in other countries as well with the same insurance. Hence before going out to any other country, be sure that you have enough insurance policies to protect yourself at those places as well.

Sometimes you may find that your current health insurance is covering your health abroad as well but it may have some certain time limit. In most of the cases this type of insurance covers the insurer for 30 days abroad. Thirty days is a common limit on
