Katee Sackhoff â€“ A popular fan choice due to her role as Starbuck on Battlestar Galactica. She has the right athleticism for the role, although at 5â€™6â€³ she isnâ€™t quite as tall as an ideal Brienne. Some might say she is too pretty, but that can be fixed with makeup. If the production even wants to fix it, there are many who believe we might get â€œHollywood uglyâ€• for this role. The other big strike against her? She is American. However, I suspect she will audition. Her best friend, and fan of the books, Tricia Helfer will probably encourage her to. But I donâ€™t know if she will ultimately be cast.

Miranda HartMiranda Hart â€“ A popular British comedienne, Hart is best known for her BBC sitcom Miranda. At 6â€™1â€³ sheâ€™s definitely got the size to play Brienne. But maybe not the athleticism. She also not blonde, although that isnâ€™t essential to the character and could easily be fixed in any case. The thing is sheâ€™s already got a successful sitcom on the BBC, would she really want to leave that? And sheâ€™s more of a comedic actress, how would she handle the really dramatic stuff? She does have one prominent backer though â€” Finn Jones (Loras Tyrell) has tweeted his feeling that she would make a good Brienne.

Eva DamenEva Damen â€“ This Dutch actress is a newcomer to the Brienne casting discussion. Her name first popped up when she began an active online campaign for the role a la Conan Stevens. She looks to have the right physical attributes: tall, athletic, and with stage combat training too. Despite never appearing in anything but Dutch productions, her resume says she can speak English and do a British accent. But she is very inexperienced, is her acting talent sufficient for a major role? This sort of online fan campaign has worked before, in a similarly unique role, so maybe she has a shot?
