Beautiful Beaches of El Puerto de Santa Maria by James Purefoy

Article published on July 3rd 2012 | Destinations

El Puerto de Santa Maria is located in Cadiz Bay and is an amazing place to visit while here. It is most famed because of the wines, gastronomy and the beaches that are found here all of which are bound to make any holiday or visit most amazing. Apart from these, you will also find numerous monuments among the castles, churches, archaeological findings, bullring and a fish market. They are some of the attractions within the village.

The beaches are of course a favorite for most people and since they are in abundance in this part of Cadiz, you will manage to have all the fun and relaxation that you could be looking for during your stay. The beaches are wide and sandy. They are composed of clear waters and golden sand and are very popular for wind surfing. There are definitely those that you can never miss out on while here.

Playa del Buzo: also commonly referred to as Vista Hermosa Beach, it is one of the best places to be for the best city views. It is a beach that is open to Atlantic Ocean and the waves are much more than on other beaches on the bay. It is also cooler as compared to the rest of the beaches in Cadiz.

Puntilla Beach: the water on this beach is much calmer especially because of the bank protection that it has. It is therefore ideal for other great water sports and beach activities.

Levante Beach: it is found on the Cadiz Natural Park hence isolated from any form of urbanization. The environment here is however excellent because it is all natural but the winds can be very strong as well. It is a great place for walks and small hikes since there arenâ€™t many activities that can be enjoyed from here.

Fuentebravia Beach: if you love fishing and scuba diving, then this is the place to be. You will find the beach most crowded during summer since it is the time when the temperatures and climate in general is most friendly.

Valdelagrana Beach: also quite crowded in summer, the beach has modern infrastructure, excellent services and all equipment types that one could need during any kind of a holiday. It is very beautiful and there is a lot of fun activities that one can enjoy while here. You will find the clean environment also very impressive.
