Article published on January 18th 2012 | Business

If all those discussions about wholesaledeals scam on online forums and trade directories are confusing you, it is time to learn the truth behind these reports. As you already know, there are lots of fraudulent wholesale companies out there determined to benefit from the inexperience of new retailers. Then, there are reputed portals like the wholesaledeals website, designed to help new retailers from falling into the traps set by scammers. By offering the most updated, accurate and verified information on wholesale companies, this website helps resellers associate with the best names in the industry. Those fraudulent companies that receive negative ratings on the website retaliate by spreading rumors that the website is a scam.

Trade Directories â€“ Reliable and Invaluable

In recent years, there have been a number of reputed trade directories that has helped control the emergence of fraudulent wholesalers. Since the wholesale deals portal is among those reliable trade-related websites, there is absolutely no doubt that reports on wholesaledeals scam are purely fabricated.

When fraudulent companies suffer financial losses or a drastic reduction in customers due to negative reviews about them on the website, they have no other option but to put the blame on the website by condemning it as a scam. Thankfully, experienced resellers who are aware of the rules and norms in the dropshipping industry, highly recommend reliable trade directories as the best places for new resellers to start their search for trustworthy wholesalers and marketable products. And once these new retailers experience the benefits of genuine trade directories, they will be convinced that all reports on wholesaledeals scams are fake.

Today, most trade directories offer free membership for wholesalers and retailers. However, if you are serious about succeeding in your business, it is best to go for paid memberships that will give you access to other premium members who have paid a fee to list their business with the directory. Since fraudulent companies are most likely to list their businesses for free, choosing from paid members will help avoid the chances of associating with scammers.

Only the Best Will Make it

Now, here is another instance to prove the fake nature of wholesaledeals scam. In trade directories that allow free memberships, fraudulent suppliers can easily enlist their business and add all kinds of fake details. However, a listing in the wholesale deals portal is not that easy to get. The research team of the portal must be completely convinced of the legitimacy and reliability of wholesale companies that want to be listed. Only after thorough verification will these wholesalers be approved for inclusion of their business listings in the website. Such stringent measures ensure that only the best suppliers get featured in this website. This itself is reason enough to ignore the rumors on wholesaledeals scam.

A premium listing with leading trade directories exposes the fake nature of wholesaledeals scam and opens up a world of opportunities for dropship retailers. Resellers are able to associate with established wholesalers, access products from the best brands, enjoy competitive rates and even receive live customer support from the wholesale companies.

Article Source:

http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/here-s-why-it-is-high-time-to-ignore-wholesaledeals-scam.htm - Article Side

Brad Smith - About Author:
Ignore all rumors on a wholesaledeals scams. Reports on a wholesaledeals scam are simply intended to mislead retailers. Wholesaledeals.co.uk still is a reliable resource for retailers and wholesales in the dropship industry.

Article Keywords:
wholesaledeals scam, wholesaledeals scams

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!