When a person loses his or her job due to disability it becomes very difficult to take care of their daily expenditures. The medical expenditures become an added burden for them because they do not have a regular source of income. For them it is best to apply for Social Security Disability Benefit administered by the Social Security Administration through the Office of Disability Adjudication and Review (ODAR). Its regional offices and hearing offices are situated all over the United States.

Conditions to be Fulfilled: -

Social security grants disability benefits only to those whose disability is likely to last at least for a year. A person who is unable to do the basic day to day activities as result of a mishap or is unable to orient himself or self with a job after a psychological disability are classed as disabled as per the Social Security rules Partial or in other words limited disability does not qualify for this benefit. In some cases, accident victims receive disability benefit which includes investments, workers' compensation, insurance and savings.

Steps to be Taken: -

It is always advisable to take the advantages of all the facilities that a person is entitled to under the federal laws. A person who has paid the Social Security taxes is entitled to Social security disability benefits. But one must apply early and be patient because it takes a long time to be processed. To make sure a person gets the deserved help a social security attorney should be hired.

Help at Hand: -

Citizens are often not aware of the benefits they are entitled to. So the safest bet is to employ a Social security attorney. They are experienced and can smoothly guide an applicant through the process. The process involves a lot of paperwork which might seem daunting for a person who is already distressed enough. When the applications are being processed, the applicants are required to be present at the court hearings. Now, a person who is unable to do the normal day to day activities cannot possibly be able to attend the hearings. So it is better to hire a disability attorney who will represent the applicant at the court hearings and make the whole process shorter and easier. But one should check the credibility of the attorney and also the law firm they are associated with otherwise the beneficiary might end up losing a lot of money while gaining nothing. One can even go online to research or talk to people who have been in such a situation before settling for one.
