How to Boost Your Carâ€™s Trade-in Value for a Truck by Maria Wegner

Article published on April 19th 2012 | Business

When in Canada and you need to haul things from one place to another, say, Mississauga to Orangeville, it is inconvenient to use an old passenger car. To travel approximately 36 miles between these cities is quite a long drive, and youâ€™ll need a more spacious vehicle for your cargo. When this is your dilemma, then itâ€™s time to get a new vehicle, preferably a light truck.

You might be surprised to know that light trucks have become a more popular choice among Canadian residents. Light trucks dominated the overall vehicle market by 55% over passenger cars in the last two years. With Mississauga rated prosperity-wise as among the best cities to live in, residents can very well afford to purchase cars and light trucks. If you can afford it, why not get one?

Whether youâ€™re getting a brand new light truck or a used one, you definitely want to lower the costs as much as you can. If you have an old car, trading it in for a truck can be a good idea. The problem: your carâ€™s trade-in value may not be enough to lower your vehicle purchase.

So, whatâ€™s the way to boost your carâ€™s trade-in value? While thereâ€™s no guaranteed means to i your car value from $1,000 to $10,000, there are some things you can do to make it worth even a couple hundred dollars more. Essentially, it is important that your car is in good condition, inside and out; this shouldnâ€™t be a problem if you regularly maintain your car. Here are other ways to make it look better and ready for sale.

Clean your car thoroughly; vacuum the carpets and seats. Wash off any stains and keep the glove compartment free from clutter. Most used trucks Mississauga drivers sell are scraped of accumulated mud in the tires and cleared of litter in the truck bed. Do the same thorough clean-up with your car and check oil, battery and lights as well.

Have all maintenance records ready especially if your car has undergone major repair works. Address mechanical problems and inform your used trucks Orangeville dealer of any outstanding issues like a noisy muffler, weak air conditioning unit or non-working wipers. Dealers will appreciate your honesty and maybe even help you spruce up your car a bit.

The key is to keep you car in good running condition, the interior and exterior spic and span and primed for prospective buyers. If you do these, you will soon find a buyer and then start to look at used trucks Orangeville or Mississauga dealers have in their car lots for your turn to purchase.
