Have you ever thought of attaining a degree while sitting at home? Have you ever imagined not going to a campus and deposit high fees? With the rapid growth of technology, education has arrived to your doorsteps through distance learning. Erudition is the essence of life and to achieve it you need to do the best you can within your constraints. You can get yourself educated with an online mode of study or distance learning. A lot of degrees can be achieved while sitting at home and just switching on the computer.

There are various institutions across the world which provides online education. Nowadays, degrees ranging from bachelors to doctorate can be availed through distance learning and without going to a regular institution. There is no significant difference as far as the course curriculum is concerned and due to the advent of technology and social media, the courses have become as interactive as full time ones.

Advantages of Distance Learning

The distance learning programs are very cost-effective. You need not deposit high tuition fees for such courses. Availing the internet, you can maintain an effectual interactive session with your teachers and professors. You can be a working professional along with your studies. You can shoulder social responsibilities and not compromise on family commitments.

Degrees offered

Undergraduate:-The courses offered through distance learning for Undergraduates can range from the normal stream like Science, Business Studies/Commerce and Arts to the very creative ones like Fashion Designing, Mass Communication, Media and Cultural Studies, Journalism, Hotel Management, Architecture, Computers, law, Sports Science, Economics etc.

Post Graduate:-Just like the Undergraduate Courses, there are various options available for pursuing Post Graduate degrees via the distance learning mechanism and Management degrees are in vogue at the moment. The post graduate courses are in Accounting and Banking, Art and Design, Business Information Technology, Digital Media, Chemistry and Pharmaceutical Sciences, Film Studies, Music, Social Work, Social Sciences, etc.

Ph d/Doctorate:-The Doctorate courses offered in the Distance learning medium are slowly gaining traction but they are not so popular as the undergraduate and Post Graduate courses. The reason is primarily because this is a highly specialised field and itâ€™s important for one to be absolutely sure of what are the outcomes and the course contents. Today, thanks to internet and technology revolution, these courses allow for deeper interaction among students and research guides which make the learning very enriching.
