Roger James Hamilton and the Path That Led Him to Wealth Dynamics by Corwin Smith

Article published on February 25th 2012 | Advertising

One of the finest theories that have ever been given in the field of wealth creation is that of wealth dynamics. It is really important that this theory be given the due importance as well as the due respect that it deserves. And the simple reason is that this theory has everything that a man can hope for while he is on the journey of wealth creation. Although the concept of wealth creation is pretty old yet there never ever has been a theory that can give the man seeking wealth creation the wealth that he is seeking as well as the happiness that would help him in enjoying the wealth that he has earned. It is really important that the man who is determined to earn the wealth that he thinks that he deserves follows the dictums of the theory of wealth dynamics, as that is the only theory that can help the people in really earning the wealth that he truly deserves. And it is only important that the man behind the theory be given the due importance that he deserves. The name of that genius is Roger Hamilton.

And it was not an easy task for him to arrive at the theory. It is really important to know the path that this man took in order to make sure that it is not only him who earns the wealth that he seeks, but also the other people who are dreaming of making it big in life. Roger Hamilton after his education from one of the finest universities in the world, and that too in the field of finance, realized that the knowledge he had gleaned from the finest of educators in the world was not the one that would work in the practical world. And he did not arrived at the conclusion all of a sudden. It was only after he had spent some ten years of his life as an entrepreneur that he realized that the losses that he had suffered that amounted to some $130 million was not because of the lack of efforts on his part, but rather it was only because of the system that he was operating within that was responsible for the financial losses as well as the wastage of the ten years of his life.

And once he become assured that the system that he had been operating within was not the one that would give him the desired results, he immediately decided that it would be wiser to find a system that is risk free. And the courage that he had as well as the wisdom that he was blessed with he was able to look clearly into the truth. And the truth that Roger Hamilton was able to look at was that very basic ingredient called Nature was missing in the entire scheme of things called nature. And once that basic ingredient would be included in the financial operations, almost all the problems that the world of finance is facing would be over. And he encapsulated his findings in the sets of theories one of which is the theory of wealth dynamics. And it is this theory that is really important for the world of finance.
