What makes it a good choice to buy envelopes from wholesalers?

by Deepti

Article published on May 16th 2012 | Business

In this digital age, most people prefer to go for e-mails as it offers paperless correspondence storage ability. However, this does not mean that papers and envelopes have completely died out. There are many people who still use envelopes in great quantities. Thus, it is best to buy envelopes from wholesalers if there is need to have such office supplies in bulk quantities. It would not only be good choice for all business and offices, but also for individuals who require them for home use.

Envelopes are available in wide range of styles and sizes. Envelopes can be bought from wholesalers that have huge stock, right from the bigger bubble pad variety suitable for mailing large items and smaller parcels, to the smaller pocket-size variety that is mostly used in schools and churches for collecting donations and offerings. Envelopes come in different styles such as gummed, clasped, self-sealed, or the standard one.

Small envelopes are in great demand with school going children for collecting donations for schools, churches, old age homes and other society fund raisers. These types of envelopes come in different sizes to suit every need. Most of these smaller envelopes can be bought for distributing business cards and flyers.

Small sized envelopes are most favorable for children as they can start to learn budget values with their allowance and income from part time jobs. It can help them to take their own decisions as to how to spend their pocket money and then allot a small pocket envelope for each quarter of their expenditure.

The big sized manila envelopes are suitable for storing homework assignments, artwork, appliance manuals and warranties, official documents, and other important records. Each of the documents can be stored in designated envelopes and placed in a larger folder, which is kept inside a fireproof box or cabinet.

Individuals may have need for storing personal and business letters, and the best way to do that is to keep them in letter sized envelopes. These envelopes come in sizes that are most commonly used at homes or offices. Businesses can opt for window envelopes in varying sizes for billing purpose. There are some wholesalers that only sell their stock to printing companies and printing resellers. Some of them may carry out special request from their clients to design invitation cards, promotional cards etc.

For all those who are engaged into online business, for instance shopping portals, they can use padded envelopes for dispatching various products of their online store. The bubble pad envelopes are a good option for dispatching fragile goods such as CDâ€™s, pen drives, or any other fairly small and slim products. The bubble pad envelope would be best choice for shipping such items and ensuring that they reach their destination without any damage.

Small plastic envelopes are affixed at the top of the parcels and used to display the name and address of the recipients and hold the products invoice. Bigger self sealing envelopes are favorable for shipping bigger items such as blankets, garments and any other items made of fabric.

Article Source:

http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/what-makes-it-a-good-choice-to-buy-envelopes-from-wholesalers.htm - Article Side

Deepti - About Author:
As envelopes come in an array of different sizes and styles, it is imperative to keep in mind the purpose you are buying the envelopes for. To a buy envelopes some of the significant factors that you need to consider include appropriate size, style, type, color, texture and quality of paper used in the envelopes.

Article Keywords:
buy envelopes , Envelope sizes

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!