Oakley Unveils Brand New Fast Jacket Sunglasses Collection by Nicole Uwhite

Article published on December 15th 2011 | Clothing

Nothing is more liberating in fashion than the freedom of personalization. For example, a pair of designer sunglasses that you can fully customize is an excellent perk when you're spending a pretty penny for a high-quality frame, as you get more options for the price of one. Oakley's new Fast Jacket and Fast Jacket XL collections allow you to change your look to match your outfit or accommodate varying weather conditions.

Switchlock technology is a major focus of these Oakley sunglasses. This provides the utmost support for removable lenses, securing them in the right place when you switch them in and out. The lenses are made of Plutonite â€“ a lightweight polycarbonate material â€“ and are also polarized for the ultimate production from harmful UVA and UVB rays. They are treated with a hydrophobic coating as well to keep your glasses protected against rain, oil, dust and other substances that may damage or smear the lenses.

Oakley Fast Jacket sunglasses come with an extra set of these lenses in a different color. There are several different color options, each of which are optimized for a certain level of lighting or weather condition, and are also available to fit your prescription.

Both the original style and Oakley Fast Jacket XL sunglasses are made of O-Matter, which is the brand's patented material that allows the frames to be flexible and to absorb impact. O-Matter makes the frames bounce back from any hit, which is perfect for athletes who are subject to getting hit in the face with a ball or other piece of sporting equipment. The sunglasses also feature Unobtainium ear pieces. This type of material is designed to increase grip through wetness, so there is no need to worry that working up a sweat will make the glasses fall off of your face.

The XL is a larger version of the semi-rimless sunglasses, which wraps around the head for increased peripheral vision. Both styles are available in Sky Blue, Lemon Peel, Polished White, and Silver. The interchangeable lenses come in Black Iridium, Clear, Fire Polarized, Persimmon, Clear Back Iridium Photochromic, Blue Iridium, and Jade Iridium.

No matter your sense of style or sporting preference, Oakley glasses make the perfect sunglasses for your optical needs. Prepare for next season's games with a pair of your own Fast Jacket frames today!
