Advanced Diploma Therapy Course by Mark Nelsons

Article published on December 22nd 2011 | Alternative Medicine

The Advanced Diploma Therapy Course is designed for those who wish to take their massage skills to the next level. You will learn a wider range of massage techniques that are backed by a sound knowledge of the health sciences. You'll also get to learn practical tools and tips based on an in-depth understanding of the inner workings of the human body and which techniques are suitable and can be usefully applied in different situations.

The course is also perfect for health professionals who intend to expand their knowledge and skill range to include the techniques and philosophy of massage. As a massage therapist, youâ€™ll be able to find tension in the body and effectively eliminate it using one or a combination of healing remedies including Swedish massage, shiatsu, reflexology, trigger point therapy, among others Upon completion of the course, you can find your niche within a health team either as a massage therapist or a massage practitioner under the supervision and guidance of a physical therapist.
