Dressings with cashmere jumpers, Scottish tartan and Harris tweed jacket by John Smith

Article published on May 31st 2012 | Shopping

There is no fabric quite like Cashmere; it is so luxurious and stylish, and extremely warm and comforting for any well-organised person. Soft to the skin, but perfect for keeping out the winter chills, a menâ€™s Cashmere jumper is the ideal garment and a must-have for those cold months.

The fabric comes from the Cashmere goat, and the fibres are wonderfully soft to the touch. As well as retaining the heat, making them an unparalleled insulator, many men find that once they have had Cashmere, artificial jumpers are simply not good enough.

Synthetic sweaters fail to provide the warmth that Cashmere gives, unless they are made from rather bulkier materials. The beauty of Cashmere is that it is soft yet very light, meaning the wearer does not have to feel they are wearing four or five layers.

They are available in many styles and necklines, with or without sleeves and in every conceivable colour and pattern, so there is the perfect jumper out there for everyone who is looking out for comfort as well as style.

In the production process, the fibres are carefully segregated, ensuring only the softest ones are used very judiciously and carefully. It is this vital separation that enables Cashmere to retain its unique feel, and many people understandably maintain that once they're had Cashmere, they won't be willing to go back to other fabrics.

Whether you're buying clothes for yourself, or for that special man in your life, there is nothing finer than a menâ€™s Cashmere jumper. Scottish tartan is also very popular form of fabric which is used in Scotland including entire UK and the rest of the world.

The harris tweed jacket has been gaining popularity in recent years tremendously. Still, even with the surge of celebrity tweed sightings, many individuals are still confused about how to wear and how to not wear harris tweed jackets. What Not to Wear with Tweed is something what you should know. When many individuals think of tweed today, pictures of old-school teachers wearing jackets with patches on the elbows may come to mind instantly. Some may consider this jacket to be clothing only country club members wear. Other individuals may take this kind of jacket to be nothing more than a glorified blazer. All of these assumptions have proved to be wrong. While your college professor may indeed be wearing a harris tweed jacket, the jackets of today are much more stylish and contemporary. No longer reserved for country club members and the wealthy, these jackets are stylish and perfect for any well dressed man. Wearing it correctly, though, is another matter entirely.

When you slip on this type of jacket, donâ€™t confuse it with a suit jacket. Tweed jackets are made from heavier fabric and are very sporty in nature. One should avoid pairing the jacket with items like Graphic shirts, T-shirts, Tennis Shoes and shorts.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/shopping-articles/dressings-with-cashmere-jumpers-scottish-tartan-and-harris-tweed-jacket.htm - Article Side

John Smith - About Author:
John smith is author of this articles and writes since long time,. For further details about a kilt belts and a tartan scarf please visit the website.

Article Keywords:
Cashmere jumper , harris tweed jacket , kilt belts , tartan scarf

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!