Try to imagine for a moment that all the planning has been done for your wedding day. the wheel is all set to be in motion but then you realize that of all the invitees, only five percent attend the function. Some of the guests had other commitments, and you had not informed them in advance about your wedding date. This is the reason wedding save the date cards are needed. Although such cards are not a necessity but these cards are gaining popularity nowadays as guests have to come from far way places at time and everyone has got a busy life routine so there should be prior information about the wedding date.

Save the date cards are a relatively modern concept, they have not been much included in wedding etiquette as of this time. However, it would be a wise decision to include save the date cards in the wedding stationary and preparation outline. Sending these cards helps your near and dear ones to remember the date and keep the date away from any other planning. Once the wedding date and the location have been decided, you should get your save the date cards printed. There are many other items available for save the date, such as save the date magnets, announcement cards and even scratch off cards. These are available in many different shapes, colors and themes. They can be matched to your wedding stationary and theme, or you can select something which is very unique and different from others.

Save the date type items are charming editions to your wedding announcements besides serving as reminders for your intended guests. These cards are generally sent around four or five months prior to the actual wedding event. These also provide your guests with an ample amount of time save the date from any other commitment and make other arrangements such as making a new dress or travel arrangements. This becomes altogether more important if you intend to plan the wedding during the vacations or holidays.

wedding save the date cards can be either printed or homemade, in case the funds are less, or the theme of the wedding includes the use of other homemade wedding creations. The cards can be embossed or simply written or you can use wedding computer software to print your own cards, as the main purpose is that if a reminder. No doubt the cards are a personal thing; it is fine to keep the matter in brief. The cards can include the name of the bride and groom with their photograph mentioning the wedding date, or with a short poem which includes the names and date. Always include the words â€œInvitation to Followâ€• on the card. Itâ€™s your wedding so the ideas are entirely yo how you want to make this occasion more special.

The only thing you need to remember is that whether itâ€™s a card, magnet, scratch card or any other item, it should be dispatched well in time so that your guests can remember the auspicious date and make sure that all those have been sent the card receive the wedding invitation as well.
