Many sufferers of hair loss search among a numerous of possible solutions for a remedy. The hair transplant treatment was started by USA first but later on it gets popularity in India too. Being an economical and tourists place many foreigners prefer to undertake this treatment in India only. Hair loss affects one's appearance, confidence and sometimes even one's relationships with others. A hair transplant is a cosmetic treatment that many people consider to be worth the cost.

Moreover Indian doctors provide the combination of caring, good skilled, well-trained team with comfortable ambience where you can spend hours with music, food and relaxation without fear. Besides, less value of Indian Currency in the global economy has attracted many foreign citizens to choose India as their medical destination.

Hair transplant treatment gives a reason to smile and live a happy life and it is a cost effective treatment. As it is a surgical treatment there are several excellent permanent hair transplant procedures available to consider. The best and the latest method of hair transplantation in which the hair follicles are extracted individually and implanted on the bald area is FUE (Follicular Unit Extraction) Treatment. It is a surgery that takes healthy hair from the back of a person's head and moves it to the front of the head. The back and sides of a man's head contains hair known as donor dominant hair because it keeps growing throughout the lifetime of most men. Transplantation of the donor dominant hair does not cause it to stop growing, which makes it ideal to be transplanted to areas of hair loss. The front and top of a man's head is where hair loss is most likely to occur. This procedure is undertaken by some skilled professional doctors who are skilled to do these super specialized surgeries with new techniques.

People suffering from hair loss may wish to consult physicians specializing in hair restoration for the best estimate of exactly how much they can expect to pay. During the hair transplant consultation good communication between the doctor and the client is crucial. The client should ask everything that comes to mind, as no question is too big or too small. If anything is unclear the client should make sure that the doctor clarifies and explains accordingly. The client should never hesitate to ask plenty of questions, as a good hair transplant doctor will be pleased to answer all of them and make sure his client is comfortable during the entire consultation.

Some people might have a small bald spot that they'd like to cover, which may only take about a dozen hair grafts, while others may have a significant amount of hair loss, which may take hundreds of hair grafts to restore. This inevitably adds up based on how many hair grafts are needed per person, which can only be determined by a doctor during a consultation.

The total cost depends on the number of grafts required. While costs associated with a hair transplant have gone down in recent years. Financing and low monthly payments are available for those concerned with their budget. Over a long period of time, the cost associated with a hair transplant is less than the costs associated with other hair replacement options. Toupees, medications and other systems to combat hair loss all cost money to maintain. Hair transplanted to balding parts of a person's head is usually resistant to loss, so a person receiving a hair transplant is paying for permanent results.
