Are you heading to Glastonbury or one of the other major music festivals this year? Want to fully immerse yourself within the party atmosphere and have mega amounts offun as part of the crowd? Donâ€™t forget to take a selection of Glow Sticks with you then and wear Glow Bracelets at the same time.

Glow Sticks are popular features at events and a music festival is the perfect place to use these highly colourful products. Stood there in the crowd you can waft your Glow Sticks about and be seen and heard until the wee small hours of the morning. Glow Sticks are fabulous novelty items and they are must-have products at music festivals throughout the land.

Using Glow Sticks

Until they are â€˜armedâ€™ Glow Sticks are simply coloured plastic tubes that look fairly inconspicuous. They soon come to life though when you bend them until you hear a snap then give them a really good shake. This is when the Glow Sticks start to shine and once youâ€™ve made them active theyâ€™ll keep on glowing for up at 24 hours.

Once the Glow Sticks are in their prime you can hold them in hands, wave them about in the air or you could hang them around your neck and theyâ€™ll be the perfect accessory especially if you wear Glow Bracelets at the same time. Glow Sticks are simple to operate and youâ€™ll feel left out if you donâ€ take a few with you to music events this season.

Buying Glow Sticks

Try not to worry if you forget to buy Glow Sticks in time for a music festival there are always traders on sight that sell Glow Bracelets and other novelty items. Be warned though, youâ€™ll pay an excess buying Glow Bracelets through sellers on site they tend to bump their prices up because they have a captive target audience.

The way to save money is to buy Glow Sticks prior to going to the event just look for low cost suppliers of flashing novelty items online. More often than not youâ€™ll be able to buy a pack of six Glow Sticks from online suppliers for the same price as one item sold at a music festival.
