Everyone wants their house to look attractive. In such situations, most people tend to change the interiors of their home wherein each furniture as well as wall colors everything seems to look different but doors are never paid attention. Shoji screen doors combine the visual appeal of traditional materials with todayâ€™s demanded lifestyle. Installing these screen doors would definitely give your place an altogether different look, which you have been longing for. These interceptors can even serve as room partitions and enclosures, which an ordinary door cannot do.

These doors are mostly used to let the soft diffused light from outside filter within. As a result, soft light is easily transmitted through the screen; hence, you can create a private area while retaining an airy and spacious environment. Made from timber hardwood frame that has the correct grain and density, the original shoji screen can serve as room dividers or sliding wall partitions. They can easily be customized and finished in black lacquer, clear lacquer or in a range of different colors. The screens can also run in a cavity or on the outside of a room as required.

Light in weight and elegant these doors can be used in many sliding forms. Ideal for both smaller areas and spacious places these Shoji sliding doors do not let the user feel the confinement of space. They offer complete privacy and if needed can be fitted with the external stiles to accommodate the fixtures. When an unobstructed walkway is required, they can be installed as wall or top mounted tracking system. Designed to slide parallel to the wall they provide an ease in opening. These doors do not slam and also prevent any accidental strikes due to sudden opening. They make your place look more clear and decent. As they can easily be opened up wide hence they do not obstruct the moving of wider articles.

Easy to clean and maintain these doors have become a fashion nowadays. If you want to give you office a productive and professional look then there is nothing better than these doors. Just install these sliding doors and see the difference it makes to your place.
