Quality Differences in 4 and 5 Star Travel Resorts and Those of Lesser Quality by Wholesale_Traveler

Article published on January 18th 2012 | Travel

People love to travel throughout the year. Many of them enjoy spending time at resorts, and most prefer to book their night's stay in 4 or 5 star hotels. The reasons for this vary, but it generally is because they love the comfort, beauty, and extravagance that all comes with spending time in luxurious accommodations.

4 and 5 star travel locations are all about service and luxury, and most of them have ready access to luxurious spas. The elegance is very visible throughout the facility, right from the lobby to each of the hotel rooms or suites. You will even notice that maintenance issues are never left to do another day. They are generally addressed quickly and most of the time clientele never even knows something is going on.

This can be quite the opposite when you book your stay in some of the lower priced travel locations and resorts. While there is typically attention paid to keeping the rooms and suites clean and comfortable for those who will be staying there, you will often see some types of maintenance issues that have been let go for too long. Broken tiles and paint that is chipping is just a small portion of what you may expect to find when you stay in the lower end resorts.

It is even likely that you will not have quick access to an on location spa. Of course, some people do not require a spa, and are only looking for a pool, but even the pools in 3 star and less hotels and travel locations do not offer an acceptable pool much less one that is indoors as is typically found in the 4 and 5 star resorts.

Everyone loves to be able to find a great fine dining venue when they travel for vacation or work, and that is typically made easier since most 4 and 5 star resorts offer great restaurants. Many times, you will even find some that have renowned chefs who offer exclusive dishes of their own design. This really makes the occasion to travel that much more exciting.

Some 5 star hotels even come with a beautifully appointed suite of rooms that include a bedroom, dining room, kitchen and balcony, and many have a mini-bar as well. All of this is the epitome of luxury, and just what you want when you are away from home.

So that you will know, 3 star hotels are the most affordable and convenient for ordinary people. You will find comfort and class at a good value. The guest rooms and the lobby as well as the rest of the hotel are tastefully furnished. The rooms come with only the basics like a bed, telephone, TV, cupboard, sofa, dressing table, and some other accessories with a bathroom attached. They also have a nice bar and restaurant and maybe a gym, but these will never be of the same quality that can be found in 4 and 5 star hotels and resorts.

You will probably find less comfort and luxury from the 3 star and less hotels, but some of them do offer room service, and free valet parking, and they are typically found located close the business districts, tourist spots and the suburbs
