Have you ever heard the name of patio heater? Of course you have, according to me. And if not then this article is to let you know everything about it. Well itâ€™s a heater that is used basically for outdoor purpose. Because of its so many features it has became a part of our household commodities. Its shape is little bit like an umbrella. It comes with a gadget that is installed on its upper side for releasing smoke or heat. It has a regulator which is used to control heat while cooking. It can produce heat up to 6 meters. You can use either LPG or electricity for cooking.

Now you might have drawn a picture of it in your mind. Let me tell you about its uses also. In winter season when you want to keep warm environment then patio heater is the best to give your environment a warm appearance. Everyone likes to enjoy winter with warm environment which becomes possible with it. Even some outdoor restaurants are also using it to give a chance to their customers to take the pleasure of outside beauty.

If you are really impressed with it and want to take one for your home but your budget is restricting you then you will not need to worry. As it is very affordable and easily fits in your budget. So just arrange a get together with your friends or relatives and give them warm environment in chilled winter with your patio heater.

If you want to about how many types of heaters are available then there are three types of it which is Propane, Natural Gas and Electric. It depends on your needs that which one you choose.

Propane is considered suitable for large space and is a little bit costly then other two types. So if you can afford it will be best for you as it is portable also which can be easily shifted from one place to another. Another type is electric or halogen heater. It is suitable only to warm small space and it uses electricity as it is clear from its name itself. It is eco friendly as it doesnâ€™t emit carbon.

Other then above mentioned types some other types of heaters are also available in stylish and decorative look that you can use both for warming purpose and as a decorative item.
