Article published on December 10th 2011 | Travel Tips

A working visa New Zealand allows you to work in New Zealand for a limited amount of time. You can apply for a working visa before traveling to New Zealand. You can also apply for a working visa once you are already in New Zealand. Whether you apply onshore or offshore, you may include travel conditions allowing a single entry or multiple entries.

There are four different options for you if you are applying under Work to Residence visa which include the following:

1. Talent (Accredited Employers) Work is for people with a job offer from an employer who we have accredited.

2. Talent (Arts, Culture and Sports) Work is for people with exceptional talent in their field of art, culture or sport for 30 months.

3. Long Term Skill Shortage List Work is for people working in an occupation on our Long Term Skill Shortage List (LTSSL).

4. Long-Term Business Visa is for those who want to do business or set their own business in New Zealand for a long period.

You can apply for a working visa new Zealand if you are the partner or de facto partner, of a New Zealand citizen, residence class visa holder, work visa holder, or student visa holder. To qualify you must be living together with your partner in a genuine and stable relationship at the time the application is made. Your partner must also intend to be in New Zealand for the same period of time.

New Zealand is known for its spectacular scenery many lakes, mountains, forest, Volcanoes, Rivers and expansive coastlines making many people to move to explore this beautiful country. New Zealand has accessible climate which results in many outdoor activities for people including all water sports, soccer, and cricket snow skiing and others. To make living in New Zealand a reality you must have a valid visa to enter New Zealand. There is a wide array of opportunities in many different sectors of the economy. Opportunities for employment exist in a diverse number of industries including manufacturing, professional sector, hospitality and tourism among others.

There are a number of world-class universities and technical colleges in New Zealand all offering study options and learning support for international students. Living in New Zealand allows you to have many friends from different countries as it is known to be a mullti-cultural nation. New Zealand today come from many ethnic backgrounds, including European, pacific island, Asian and African. Multi-cultural influences are very much part of the fashion, art and music.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/travel-tips-articles/working-visa-and-living-in-new-zealand.htm - Article Side

Francis - About Author:

Francis is a professional SEM/SEO,link builder and article writer who writes on different niches.a http://globalvisas.net.au/countries/

Article Keywords:
working visa new zealand, living in new zealand, working visa

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!