If you are feeling blue about your nose, do not be dismayed any longer. Consider the leaps and bounds that have been made over the years in plastic surgery technology and you will see that now is a better time than ever to go under the knife to enhance your beauty. There are two different techniques to consider when thinking about a nose job â€“ open vs closed rhinoplasty. Which one to choose depends on what your nasal structure can best support as well as any complexities involved of the surgery. Of course finding the best rhinoplasty surgeon for the job will ensure you great results matter what procedure you end up having.

When it is necessary for the surgery to be done with full access to the nasal cavity an open rhinoplasty is performed. This technique is good for those who desire a smaller size nose and so the bone is sculpted along with the cartilage. The skin of your nose is basically peeled back for this surgery and your surgeon uses his artistic skills to shape and sculpt the bone and cartilage to your specifications.

A closed rhinoplasty is much different and considered less invasive. This procedure is more likely for the type of patient who only wants a few minor changes to the look of their nose. Several small incisions are made inside the nostrils without any need to peel the nose back. The bone and cartilage are then worked on within the nose to achieve the patientâ€™s sought after results.

Benefits of Rhinoplasty:

Change the size and shape of your nose to harmonize your face.

Remove an unattractive, bothersome nose hump to give you a smoother more aesthetically-pleasing profile.

Reshape the tip of the nose to give your face a more balanced look.

Repair or relieve a birth defect or other abnormality such as a deviated septum to help you breathe easier.

It is always best when you begin your search for a good trustworthy surgeon to do your research thoroughly. Your safest bet will be with a Board Certified well-established plastic surgeon. Try to talk to previous patients. If the surgeon you are considering has a website, go through it completely. Read his or her bio and get a feel for who they are before you even meet them. Choosing the right surgeon will be the difference between a successful or regretful experience.
