Solicitors in Ireland offer helpful guidance regarding personal injury claims processes by Jeremylin

Article published on July 19th 2012 | Insurance

When a person suffers personal injury, there are basically two ways to seek compensation in Ireland. The Personal Injuries Assessment Board is considered a preferred option than taking the litigation route via courts.

By availing of services of solicitors in Ireland, you can ensure a professional representation of your case. There are reputed and established law firms in Ireland who hire seasoned solicitors only. They start by listening carefully to your case. Before proceeding they further take care to gather all the basic facts and figures which are needed to offer best advice to the client. They have expertise in a range of activities like:-

â€¢ They assist in conducting assessment for free and then offering advices accordingly. This is the basic step which is carried out for a thorough evaluation of every aspect of the case, based on info offered by the client. After this, the solicitor comes to the conclusion whether the client should proceed further and what is the reasonable compensation amount he can claim.

â€¢ They help in making application with Injuries Board at Ireland (formerly known as PIAB). The application should be made without much of delay to ensure timely compensation.

â€¢ In case the solicitor feels that the amount offered by PIAB is insufficient and that his client is entitled to a higher amount, then he can proceed with personal injuries litigation process. However, the endeavor remains on the part of the solicitor not to drag the case to the court which may result in further delay.

â€¢ They offer advices on all types of claims like traffic accidents, mishaps at public places or at workplace, accidents which have happened while travelling abroad. Even if you have suffered slips and trips at public street or shop, you can seek their guidance. In case you have been illegally ousted from the workplace you can hire solicitors in ireland to fight for your rights.

Many have this idea that claims processes drag for long and that the eventual reward is not satisfactory. This is why many feel tempted to settle for the small amount offered by the other party in accident cases. An initial informal debate without obligation with the solicitor is advisable before taking any final decision. Such sessions help in allaying fears on the part of the client. By getting in touch with experienced and confident solicitors in Ireland, you will be able to find right answers to all your queries. They will never suggest options which wonâ€™t assistance you financially. In fact after the free case assessment, they never impose any debt on the client about the final claims proceedings neither do they charge any amount. This allows the client enough free space to take own decision after assessing every pros and cons.

Before hiring any solicitor, make sure to take a look at the track record of the firm. An easy and fast approach is to explore the company website to know about its areas of expertise. For any claims related enquiry you need to fill up the online form with few detailed info. The company executive will get in touch with you.
