What do most of us imagine when think of a school? Is school meant only to teach pupils? The present education system makes well-rounded children and as the population is increasing day by day, the expectations for schools are also growing. The family always wishes the schools to teach their children more than the basic education. We mostly demand for well-rounded students who can contribute something to the society. The school authorities also try their best to make the children super talented and intellectual.

The schools of these days provide every facility with the advance teaching method to the student. School is an institution that offers education to the children of various ages at different levels. The schools provide a healthy atmosphere to the young children. The main aim of the schools is to inculcate the learning process by providing the students with excellent ambience so that they find out their own potential and can work upon to make the skills the strength of their life. Schools also try their best to make the children morally, physically and emotionally active so that in future they can face any sort of situation.

The faculty members of the schools also do everything to provide quality education to the kids with all the facilities such as library, computer labs, and science labs and play ground. Parents always try to admit their kids in the best school of the locality. School is a medium where teachers interact with the student to provide them education through instruction. Schools mostly have a large campus that consists of buildings with many teachers and students.

Few of the things which are compulsory for schools to have are a canteen, big hall, playground, gym, library and most importantly an auditorium for school functions. In todayâ€™s world where there are so many schools, it has become a struggling job for the parents to find the best school for their children. Parent should make their visit to the schools personally when they get any hint about the school that it can be beneficial for their children. It also gives an idea to the parents about how the school is and how much beneficial it will be for the children. Schools assist the children to develop their skills, attitude and knowledge in different aspects. It also helps the child be aware about the world. It is the school that inculcates extra-ordinary skills in the students.
