Now that the New Year has begun the wait for the entry of new models from different auto makers has started among the automotive fanatics. Being one myself I am also waiting for some models that i think are the best models in the current times. The reason why I said that is because all these new cars entering the market not only will boast the latest technology current available in the modern market, but at the same time will also take car of your pockets. These cars arenâ€™t all that highly priced and delivers respectable fuel efficiency, which means that you not only will be saving a decent amount of money at the time of buying the car, but also will be saving a lot during the long run. So here Iâ€™ve listed some of the new cars that will be entering the market this year and I am eagerly waiting for all these.

1.) 2012 BMW Z4

The 2012 BMW Z4 comes loaded with tons of high-end interior equipments concealed by its smooth styling and along with that it also comes loaded with tons of performance features that make it one of the finest roadsters to enter the market this year. The all new base engine offered with the Z4 this year is also a lot better.

But still I find it a tad less bracing and connecting in comparison to its Porsche competitor. But the biggest problem with it and probably the reason why many of the buyers will prefer staying away from this beauty is its heavy price tag.

2.) 2012 Scion xD

The second model that I am waiting for is the 2012 Scion xD, which will be entering the market with a charm to appeal the young car buyers. It also will deliver incredible amount of fun and utility, but there are a lot of other models in its class that offers even better usefulness and fun.

The problem with the Scion xD is the average cargo space, which clearly is insufficient for tall drivers. So although the Scion xD might not appeal the tall driver, it certainly will appeal the modern youth who ware interested in vehicles that not only are useful, but at the same time are fun to drive.

3.) 2012 Chevrolet Traverse

The 2012 Chevrolet Traverse enters the market with striking looks along with incredible handling and comfy cabin. But the biggest asset according to me here is the fuel efficiency of the Traverse that makes it ideal for the modern market. Along with fuel efficiency the 2012 Chevrolet Traverse also offers incredible passenger space, which makes it easy for the customers to carry some big items or to travel comfortably with their families.

Now, while the big size of the Traverse makes it comfortable for modern families, it actually hampers the maneuverability of the vehicle and makes it hard for the drivers to drive the vehicle around in the city comfortably, especially at the places where the traffic is dense.

So these are the three new cars that I am eagerly waiting for in the model year 2012. My list of vehicle comprises of cars from all the segments and whether you are looking for a family hauler or a zippy stylish roadster you can find them all in my list. Iâ€™ve compiled the list after doing a lot of research over the internet regarding these cars and all the other models entering the market, so I hope you guys will like it.
