And with fuel prices on the rise this is something that drivers should take heed of. This is particularly true is you have to drive quite a bit due to work assignments, duties with the family or other needs.

Written below are www.centralcontracts.com's number of worthwhile tips to get you on the road towards better fuel efficiency in your Alpha Romero.

1. Drive on the road slowly for a start Reduce your speed to reduce your fuel consumption considerably. This is probably not the funkiest way to use less fuel but it is an indispensable method, so why not reduce your speed by a couple of miles per hour and save capital. You'll witness that this is effective because there is no requirement to whack down on the gas pedal to sustain a top speed. This is because a moving car already has a certain amount of momentum, consequently it means you need a lesser volume of fuel to stay at the right speed.

2. Checking tyre pressure is imperative. The presence of under-inflated tyres can reduce your MPG as they up the amount of resistance with the road, which consumes more fuel than tyres that have been filled with the sufficient amount of air. Moreover resistance pulls the Alpha Romero back so to reach the same level of speed you'll need to use more fuel. As pressure decreases over the month you should take a reading of the tyre pressure in a regular fashion.

3. Frequently take a look at the air filter. A blocked filter restricts air from going to the engine, which affects performance levels badly. This is because the engine needs to cool off; it will seriously overheat otherwise and not do its job properly. If you can see light through the filter then it's relatively new.

4. Say no to contemporary Alpha Romero devices. Have a go at opening the window instead of turning on the A.C., this will work to cool your body temperature down and let that fresh summer breeze into the car. And it will also weigh down on your energy and cause fuel consumption to be at a higher rate.

5. Go small. If you are hoping to get hold of a new Alpha Romero go for a smaller and more fuel efficient model. At the moment there are a lot of Alfa Romeo contract hire deals from www.centralcontracts.com that might be more cost effective and kinder to the environment by reducing your carbon emissions.

6. Alternatively, if you are not ready for an upgrade then be conscious of loading up the Alpha Romero with too many heavy items. By keeping the boot filled to the brim with items you'll have more than 20 kilos of extra weight. Sadly all this will bolster fuel expenditure further, so take everything out of the boot and save mounds of cash.

7. Share your car with others. Bearing in mind that a person, will on average travel about 30 miles as part of their commute to reach their place of work, and spends 240 days of the year working, the decision to carpool will cause a reduction in the amount of miles one drives annually by 3,600 - a saving of 180 gallons of gas for a vehicle that runs on 20 mpg. This type of reduction is good news for your ailing bank balance no doubt.

By sticking to these simple ideas you should reduce your fuel consumption save the environment and your money.
