Used Family Cars Can Be Fun by Robert Vadra

Article published on July 18th 2012 | Auto

When you set out to purchase a used car that is suitable for transporting the whole family, you may worry that your choices will be limited to a series of boring, grey boxes on wheels. Nothing could be further from the truth. Family cars need to be safe, spacious and reliable. However, they can also offer high performance, top-of-the-range features and be fun to drive.

Used Mazda Family Cars:

If you are looking for a used family sedan that offers plenty of interior space, a used Mazda 6 may be right up your street. Provided that you opt for a model manufactured from 2009 onward, you will find that used Mazda 6 sedans offer plenty of legroom without compromising on performance. If you have a larger number of people to move, or simply need more cargo space, consider a used Mazda CX-9. According to Car and Driver, the Mazda CX-9 â€œoffers the most enjoyable driving experience in its classâ€•.

Used Honda Family Cars:

With a roomy interior, taut chassis and smooth suspension, you will discover that a used Honda Accord sedan is a joy to drive. The back seat will comfortably hold three adults with ample space in the trunk for baggage. On the other hand, if you have a large family or need the flexibility offered by an eight-seater, a used Honda Odyssey offers practicality combined with a pleasurable driving experience. Despite their size, you will find that used Honda Odyssey minivans are surprisingly responsive when you put your foot on the gas.

Used Toyota Family Cars:

When it comes to dependability, used Toyota Camry sedans are among the most reliable cars on the road. Used Toyota Camry sedans consistently score highly in consumer polls, giving satisfied customers miles of breakdown-free driving. But, if youâ€™re looking for a little more muscle, why not test drive a used Toyota RAV4? As one of the lightest vehicles in its class, a used Toyota RAV4 offers incredible fuel efficiency for a compact SUV. For drivers who prefer a little extra power, used Toyota RAV4 SUVs can be found with a V-6 engine rather than the standard four cylinder version.

No matter which used family car you choose, you will find that the Leggat Auto Group offers excellent deals on used cars. Burlington and Hamilton drivers can browse the available used cars at their local showrooms. Alternatively, you can search for specific makes and models of used cars using the Leggat Auto Group website (www.lag.ca).
