Rust proofing is actually a small cost that you pay for prolonged life of your vehicle i.e. a small price for a bigger reward. Rust is that pest which acts on the body of your vehicle and damages it slowly and steadily. Rust begin to form within 3-4 years of purchase, the paint and the primer used by most of the manufacturers do not last for a longer duration. This makes it easy for dirt and debris to chip the paint and get the metal exposed and this gives a very simple way for the rust to set in. Salt catalyses the process of rusting and given Canadian winters this process accelerates manifolds.

So does it work??

Rust proofing is a process in which an extra coat is applied to the vehicles body in order to provide a shield so that it gets least exposed to the salt and dust.

When is the right time???

There is no wrong time to do a right thing but for those who are extra cautious about the timing spring would be a nice option. According to some research luke to warm weather help penetrates the paint better.

Is it worth the money????

Rust is a four letter word small yet it can wreak havoc to your vehicle. So wouldnâ€™t it be a better option to initially invest in some extra to save huge losses. If you live in Canada where there is ice, snow, salt ,where the climate is so fickle plus there is kilometres of gravel filled roads. All these conditions would chip out the paint of your car in no time.

Treat your wheels well and protect it with an extra coating if you want to enhance your vehicleâ€™s life and enhance it. Many dealerships offer rust proofing, having an understanding of these small things related to maintenance would help you.
