No updates Revealed for Low End Phones by the HTC Android 4.0 Plans by Mark Boucher

Article published on May 26th 2012 | Mobile Phones

Everyday every mobile company tries to do something new for getting more attraction of the customers. HTC handsets are always admired by their fans for providing such great handsets. HTC has prepared a long list of its handsets in which proper detail is provided regarding which handsets would be blessed very soon with the Android 4.0Ice Cream Sandwich.

The Taiwanese company stated that maximum number of the handsets would be getting the ICS most probably during the month of June and July. Moreover all the announce handsets with all the latest updates would expected to be finished till August. There are many gadgets that are not mentioned in the list that when they are out in UK so a special list has been created for those gadgets for getting updated.

The company has also stated that not every gadget would be blessed with the kiss of Android 4.0. All the tablets that include the HTC Flyer are forcing the owners of the company to interfere manually with their software if they are interested in the latest version of Goggles mobile operating system. The company all declared that the entire smart phones with 512MB ROM or even less than that would not be entertained for up grading process for the Android 4.0. So it is clear from this statement that all the smart phones that are less dominating such as HTC Cha-cha, Wildfire S, Explorer, Salsa and many others are not perfect for this great feature.

The gadgets that going to be upgrade would appear with Sense Version 3.6 which is an older version of HTC Android skin than what you actually would find in the new gadgets such as HTC One X in which there is Sense 4.0. This all scene is created because for loading Sense 4 the hardware of the smart phone should be completely dedicated and such type pf keen hardware is not accessible in all the handsets as told by HTC. There is one more handset called HTC Desire Z that was released along with the Desire HD and the company has no information regarding offering Android 4.0 at this moment.
