Printing photos on canvas and hanging them on your wall by Andrew Bourke

Article published on July 13th 2012 | Photography

Turning your photos into high quality works of art is a breathtaking experience and I can recommend to all, reason being is because printing your photos on canvas is become more and more popular in interior design and home decoration as not only does a photo on canvas print look great but it also has that personal touch to it to as the photo you have printed is more than likely something that means allot to you so having it printed into artwork and then hanging it in plain sight on your wall in a brilliant way to celebrate that photo.

The good thing about having a canvas photo print made from your photos rather than having a normal photograph hung on your wall is that with a canvas print you can have the image running around the frame which creates like a 3d looking effect and this type of effect does make that whole lot of difference to.

If your are having a canvas photo print made and your giving it away as a special gift to a friend then maybe it would be a good idea to have some kind of message on the canvas from which is personal and means allot to them, you can ask the canvas printer that is producing your canvas print for you if they can add some text to the canvas for you, most of them would just do this for free if itâ€™s only a small message but I have known some of them to charge a small fee if you wanted a large amount of text like a poem or a story placed on the canvas, I have even see someone have some lyrics from a song placed on a canvas and they had a very good looking scenery picture in the background of waves crashing into a cliff were above was a lighthouse, it was a really moving picture which when well with the lyrics to.

It has also become very easy to purchase canvas prints now as many canvas printers have their own website where they can offer a range of different size canvas photo prints along with a range of different effects that can be added to them, so once you have decided which canvas size print you want to go with you simply upload your image through their image uploader and then add your canvas print size to your basket and then pay through the checkout, wow itâ€™s so easy and Iâ€™m sure that all of the expert canvas framers and printers know exactly what they are doing so leaving it in their hands for them to delivery straight to your via the image you uploaded on their website, that along with a great looking canvas prints is an amazing service all together. A great canvas print hung on your wall is something special and giving a gift like this to your loved one or even a family member or friend really does tell them that you care for them and really want them to be happy.
