Advantages of investing in a new construction house over a pre owned house by Deepti

Article published on May 2nd 2012 | Real Estate

Buying a new home rather than a pre owned house involves many major benefits. In the current market, the new homes are quite competitively priced as compared to the pre owned homes. So, except for the individuals who wish to have an address with a history or want to have a distinct neighborhood, majority of the people would do better by choosing a newly constructed house.

A significant benefit of newly constructed houses in comparison to the pre owned ones is warranty protection. While investing in a pre owned house, warranty is available but it is restricted in scope and duration as compared to the newly constructed houses. Newly constructed houses usually involve warranty for more time period on appearance and basic finishing items. Another major benefit is the power efficiency. The recently built houses are more energy or power efficient as compared to the pre owned houses. Energy efficient appliances not only help to improve the insulation but will also save your monthly utility bills to a considerable level.

Also, the recently constructed homes need much less maintenance and care as compared to the pre owned houses which will further help to reduce the monthly expenses. The developments and advancements in technology has resulted in quality exterior materials that have resulted in residents which are more resistant to any damage caused by weather and bugs and also the quality inside finishes are more resistant to any damage. The expenses and the hassles will be significantly reduced when you will have a little to do for the maintenance of the house.

Some modifications and changes can always be made so you donâ€™t need to restrict yourself with the materialistic aspects of the place. The home builders can allow you choose the right and proper finishes to make your dwelling actually your own. Another advantage of investing in a newly constructed home is that some latest features are incorporated by the home builders which are not present in the older residents. All the modern day features such as sport courts, well resourced community centers and other recreational and entertainment facilities can significantly add more convenience and enjoyment to your living in the place.

There are great number of benefits and advantages when it comes to buying e new construction home as compared to an older one. The reduced utility costs, latest amenities and features, better warranty coverage and less maintenance and care are the features which make it a worthwhile investment. Finally you can have a dream home which perfectly suits your style and taste. If you are looking for flats equipped with all the modern day facilities and amenities then furnished flats Mohali are an ideal option.
