Article published on March 15th 2012 | Recreation

The Indian dining experience can be really amazing. Just drop into any Indian restaurant London and you will realize that. Indian restaurants not only attract Indians but also people from other communities residing in London. It is the food that does the trick. Itâ€™s natural for people to get bored from eating French fries and burgers all the time. They need a change and what can be better than Indian food. Moreover you donâ€™t have to look around much to locate an Indian restaurant. London after all is a dynamic city and here you will find a variety of cuisines.

If you have a preference for a particular type of Indian food then you have to pick the right Indian restaurant London. For example if you want to have south Indian food then the best place is the Bangalore Express. It is located opposite to the Waterloo station. Here you will get authentic south Indian dishes like dosa, idli, uttapam and so on. This place is great in the sense that the Old Vic is located nearby and after watching a show there you can drop in at Bangalore Express and eat to your hearts content. Of course there are also other Indian restaurants in London where you will get region specific cuisines.

A nice thing about having Indian food in London is that you get authentic stuff at affordable prices. There are also restaurants that serve food that you find on the streets of India. Some of these have been around for years but they have kept the menu intact. The food here is always delectable. Those Indians who are planning to stay in London for a long time need not worry about finding a place that serves Indian specialties because they will definitely find one next to theirs.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/recreation-articles/indian-restaurants-in-london-for-food-that-is-truly-indian.htm - Article Side

Julia Roger - About Author:
For more information on a indian restaurants in London, check out the info available online; these will help you learn to find the a indian restaurant London!

Article Keywords:
indian restaurants in London,indian restaurant London

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!