Just One Traffic Generating Method That I Use is Yahoo Answers by Pauline Buckley

Article published on January 18th 2012 | Book Marketing

Web site traffic is among the key elements for anybody who wants to be successful on the internet. Similar to a man or woman's body, if the blood is not pumping through the veins, the individual is going to die. And if you want your site to make cash and be profitable you will need to make sure you're generating traffic to this web site every day. One of the techniques I use very successfully for producing web site traffic to my web sites is Yahoo Answers.

For those of you unaware of what Yahoo answers is, it's a program that allows men and women to ask questions and allows other men and women to answer them. You should also realize that every day on Yahoo answers different folks end up logging in to ask questions and search for answers. You are going to also realize that when these individuals find the answer they're looking for, if there's a link in that answer pointing to a website they're going to usually go to check this website out. And this is needless to say how Yahoo Answers can send traffic to your site.

This is among the great benefits of working with Yahoo answers as a way for getting visitors or traffic to any website. For example let's say you have a web site that advertises weight loss programs. Yahoo lets you search for certain types of questions, which means you can target the questions you are searching for in the weight loss category. When you discover a question which you can answer, you need to answer this question and in addition ask the person to have a look at your weight loss site, because they're going to find more information about weight loss there. Almost all of the time you will recognize that when you leave a link in your answer the individual that asked the question is going to go check out your site.

You might be saying to yourself that acquiring one visitor for all that work doesn't seem worth it, but now that your answer and website link are permanently on Yahoo, this one answer may create hundreds or thousands of visitors over time. You should realize that the page which has your answer is going to end up being indexed in the various search engines. You must keep in mind that many men and women have the same questions and if your answer, answers these questions, individuals will have the ability to find your answer in the various search engines and follow it through to your website. You'll also discover that other men and women who have answered the same question as you may possibly also end up looking at your website to see what it's all about.

While answering one question is not necessarily going to get you loads of traffic, but think about what the results are when you answer 10 questions each day. You should also realize that if you do this for one year you would wind up having 3650 high quality back-links pointing to your website. You should also keep in mind that the more back-links you have pointing to your internet site the more traffic you wind up getting from the major search engines by themselves.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/book-marketing-articles/just-one-traffic-generating-method-that-i-use-is-yahoo-answers.htm - Article Side

Pauline Buckley - About Author:
The author is a senior account representative at a Fresh Objectives. Fresh Objectives is a leading a SEO Company in Sydney Australia.

Article Keywords:
seo sydney, seo, search engines

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!