Omas Pens: Italian Luxurious with Its Finest by ALBA Hood

Article published on July 12th 2012 | Book Marketing

Do you enjoy the feel of diamonds embedded in pure gold caressing your fingertips? perfectly hand-crafted materials stroking your palm? Since the company's founding in 1925, Omas Pens has been synonymous with the terms tasteful, complex, prestigious, and timeless.

Handcrafted as a result of a process that requires years of training to perfect, Omas pens have twelve tiny sides, each one shaped and polished to perfection. Made from only the absolute highest-quality materials, it requires one hundred days to carefully craft a single Omas pen. During that one hundred day process, there are more than one hundred stages, beginning with the slicing of the glittering eighteen carat gold. Time is invested carefully rolling and bending the pen's nib to the perfect rate of elasticity. developing an Omas pen, from the gold coating to the ebonite and vulcanized rubber conduit that perfectly regulates the flow of ink, is a long process and nothing is rushed, but the finished item is a masterpiece incomparable to anything else on the market.

A completed Omas pen is nothing short of beautiful. The beauty of an Omas pen is like that of a smoldering sunset, a sultry beach, or a majestic painting; It's totally Unattainable to wrench your eyes away from the unbelievable gorgeousness of it all. Imagine it. You're sitting on the patio of a espresso shop, coated in cheap blue ink and hunched over an agonizingly boring textbook, when you spot a glint of gold glittering in your peripheral vision. You drop the textbook, whip your head around, and spot a hand twirling the most spectacular pen you've ever laid eyes on. The sun's rays reflect off the gold and glistening embedded diamonds, stopping to rest on each of the 12 perfectly chiseled sides. As the sun moves farther overhead and hits the pen dead on, the whole thing looks to ignite in a outstanding ball of light that causes spots to appear in your eyes. It's the kind of light that is so Brilliant it almost hurts to look at it, but even when you look away, it's still there, often shining in the corner of your line of sight.

The beauty of an Omas pen is just the beginning. Can you imagine what it would be like to jot down with such a masterpiece? It would be like writing with the Mona Lisa as your writing instrument. When you grasp an Omas pen between your fingertips, press its chiseled tip to the paper's surface, and smell the fairly sweet aroma of Italian ink as it wafts by way of your nostrils, a feeling of incomparable power and self confidence flows as a result of your veins. You feel as though you could pen the Finest novel in all of history, like you could make every word you jot down sing to the souls of its readers. It is a feeling that cannot be obtained by anything else.
