Bygone are those days when one had to spend hours clipping through weekly serials or chewing through magazines and newspapers to find corporate gifts that â€œone precious dealâ€• which was yet to expire. Thanks to the internet that the perfect deal you have always sought for, is on your screen now. As a consumer, you just need to register on any of the numerous deal websites and your mailbox will be crammed with alluring offers ranging from food coupons to shopping vouchers or even holiday packages!

There are several benefits linked to this which is why such deals are selling like hot cakes! They are a real bargain for the consumer on purchasing of gifts. Whatever be the endeavor, itâ€™s sure to have attractive rebate associated with it. These work in partnership with local/global businesses in order to let them advertise a special deal in a certain city. In return, it gets a commission from these companies based on the amount of people who avail those transactions thus being beneficial to all parties. So whether itâ€™s about planning surprise gifts to Mumbai or anywhere for your special ones or buying yourself some newly launched gadgets, these sites are the order of the day.

Such internet sites save companies from spending huge amounts in promoting their products and services by approaching and inviting them to list their offers on the site. Users in turn buy the products and are required to share it on their social pages with friends and families thereby advertising and promoting such offers. The customer also benefits for being social by obtaining additional discounts on the number of such shares.

These types of websites are gifts to India due to the presence of a large number of booming, small scale businesses as well as a huge consumer base corresponding to it. Such sites are easy to locate on the internet and supporting a user-friendly interface makes them more appealing to customers. For the dealers, chances of incurring losses are a minimum since they pay only if their products are sold.

Most of these websites use an ideal advertising strategy by providing localized offers which suit the customer's taste thereby making it easy to redeem the deal. Most of them offer exclusive presents, fresh to every consumer and provide new ones daily. Consumers also have complete control of what they receive through their personalized email settings. These sites are indeed in great demand in metropolises like Delhi where sellers find the internet as the only solution to reach out to the large population base while for customers itâ€™s the only way to be aware of all happening attractions around the city.

But where there is a boon, there is always some bane. Most transactions are made through credit/debit cards whereby customers have to provide certain personal details which might be misused by hackers. Often customers get carried away with tempting offers while buying corporate gifts to impress their clients and end up spending uselessly. Since there is minimum interaction between the buyer and seller, there are chances of hidden conditions. Producers too have to entirely rely upon site administrators regarding the promotion of their products.
