There is always the old standard foil stamped yearbook cover, but nowadays there are so many more options you can consider. Many people are switching to printed covers because it allows them to fully customize the cover to their school or organization.

With a printed cover, you can keep your yearbook in line with the theme you might have chosen for your yearbook, both in imagery and in color. You can also portray a particular feeling or mood that you are trying to get across. Additionally, it just allows you to create a more eye-catching, interesting cover.

In addition to being able to design your own full-color cover, you can also choose from pre-designed yearbook covers. This allows you to save time and potentially money, since you donâ€™t have to design a cover or hire a designer. You get the benefit of being able to customize the pre-designed cover to your school or organization as well.

Of course, the tried-and-true foil stamped cover is still a popular choice because of the formal look it creates. With that option, you get to choose from a selection of materials, such as leatherettes, suedes or other textured materials, as well as choosing your foil color and whether you want it embossed or not.

Your options are so diverse nowadays compared to years ago when it comes to yearbook covers, so take advantage of what is available to you. Poll your yearbook committee to come to an agreement on which type of cover you like best.
