Leadership is one of the skills that every company wants to cultivate in their employees. Good leaders can take a company to great heights. So the superior quality and solidity of any kind of organization is largely based on the quality of the leadership. Leadership is not the basic requirement, but is an inborn need of any organization.

A leader should be able to motivate people. If he is creative, then it will enhance his effectiveness and capability. In a nutshell, a good leader is someone who can make ordinary people do extraordinary things. A leader should have the capability to achieve something that seems to be impossible. As a futurist, he should make his subordinates to attain exceptionally high levels of morality, motivation and performance. Thatâ€™s why companies are looking for perfect leaders. Because, a company can show its best performance when they have top performers who are not only capable of giving brilliant ideas but also have the ability to introduce and maintain it.

He should be the symbol of strength, self-confidence and enthusiasm. As a role model to his subordinates, a good leader should have the capability to motivate his employees and coordinate them to achieve goals. Thus, a great leader is one who changes dreams into reality.

While managers focus on planning to control functions, leaders focus on vision, inspiration, motivation, teamwork, persuasion and listening. In a company, planning is the major step towards development and expansion. As a good leader, you can design and plan a conceptual framework to integrate a variety of functions. This includes new methods, problem-solving, scheduling, time management, performance appraisal and negotiation. If you can follow a proven plan structure, then you can improve the quality and method of operation.

One of the most important tasks of a leader is to control and coordinate his groupâ€™s performance. To do his duty in a better way, he should have to observe his team mates, communicate with them, give correct instructions and inspects them. Control is most often an unconcealed behavior of the leader. By controlling a team in a proper way, he can make the work done in an appropriate way, while keeping the team together.

As a good leader you should have the ability to communicate in an effective manner. If you cannot communicate effectively, then no other leadership skill will compensate for this lack. He should be a master in getting information, retrieving information and giving information.

As a leader, people will come to you with problems. So a leader should have to get into the shoes of a counselor. Most of the time, people will approach you just to share their problems. So a leader should have the patience to listen to others problems.

As a good leader, you should open your eyes and ears to everything that comes in your way. That means you should be up-to-date. To avail information about new and ongoing things you should watch informative programs on television and search on the Internet connected with service from providers like FiOS Bundles. Reading general books and daily newspapers can also help you to update your knowledge. Another beneficial way to become a good leader is by reading autobiographies of great men and women leaders.

How can we distinguish a manager and a good leader? When a leader does the right thing, a manager does things right. Or, we can say management is a profession and leadership is a calling. Can we develop leadership qualities or is it an inborn talent? This is a matter of debate, but the underlying fact is good leader should have the capability to lead and manage a team.
