London City Airport (LCY) is the Londonâ€™s fifth busiest airport located in the eastern side of London City opposite to the London Regatta Centre. The airport began full fledge operations in the year 1988 handling more than 133,000 passengers. The London City airport possesses a single runway. It was purchased by a consortium from the Irish businessman Dermot Desmond, in October 2006. It is small as compared with the other four major airports of London i.e. Heathrow, Stansted, Gatwick and Luton. Majority of the passengers at the London City airport are business travelers due to its proximity to Londonâ€™s Docklands, however the amount of leisure travelers is also increasing as per recent statistics. As far as the transport facilities are concerned, London City airport shuttle transfer services are easily available and accessible 24/7.

The London City airport cab services offer highly competitive and affordable rates for transfer services from the airport to all major locations across the country. Due to the lack of taxiways and size of the airport, it becomes very busy especially during the peak hours. Inside the airport, there are a total of 22 check-in desks and self service kiosks. The airport has a total of eighteen gates. The London city airport is closest airport for private jets therefore many commercial aircrafts land here. The helicopters are not allowed to land at the London city airport due to some factors. The airport offers free Wi-Fi facility for all passengers in the terminal area as well as business centre. The winter season is the busiest for this airport as the winter sports enthusiasts fly to ski resort locations that include Geneva, Milan, Zurich and more.

According to PrivateFly.comâ€™s 2010 survey, the London City airport was ranked 7th in the worldâ€™s t 10 airport approaches. The airportâ€™s management plans to refurbish the airport in near future. The exterior building of the airport will remain same however the interior will be renovated in order to better accommodate and manage passengers while keeping in view the projected increase of passenger traffic in the future. For the convenience of international travelers, there are many desks of private transportation firms in the arrivals lounge. London City airport car hire and taxi hire facilities can be availed easily at these travel desks. Besides, the airport offers all kinds of amenities in order to facilitate all kinds of travelers including solo, business, family and disabled travelers, as per international airport standards.
