Globalization has brought a lot of challenges to businesses across the global marketplace. Having a smooth operation and competent staff is now difficult to achieve. The high-cost of maintaining a business and finding the right employees posed as challenges to companies from different industries. In order to adapt to the changes and stand these global challenges, many companies are taking advantage of different business strategies. One of the most prominent of these strategies today is outsourcing. Outsourcing is the process of subcontracting non-core business activities to third party companies. This is being adapted by a lot of companies as business strategy because of its myriad advantages to the business of different sizes and industries. Nowadays, subcontracting non-core business activities to third party vendors is not only an essential business strategy, but has become a must for every business.

More and more companies from different parts of the globe are hiring manpower from developing countries like India, Malaysia, Singapore, China, and Philippines. This way they can effectively manage their expenses while maintaining their competitive edge in the specific industries where they operate. These developing countries have a lower economy as compared to the countries where companies that outsource services are located. The rates of labor and services in these Asian countries are much cheaper as compared to the local rates.

Among Asian countries, the Philippines is the most prominent outsourcing location, not only because of the low rates of operations and services that it offers but also because of its vast pool of knowledgeable workforce. Philippines staff is highly trainable and very knowledgeable regarding new systems and recent technologies. The country has a large pool of workforce and the availability of knowledge-based jobs and skilled workers worldwide. The Philippines boasts a vast pool of competent professionals that are knowledgeable in different areas of businesses. Filipinos have more advantage in the outsourcing industry because of their natural talents and skills.

The business process outsourcing, or BPO, industry in the Philippines has become one of the leading global outsourcing providers on the planet. It has already secured a place in the outsourcing world and now being considered as one of the key players in the BPO industry. Philippines has been answering the tremendous demand for offshore staffs and outsourcing services. Outsourcing providers in the country have the capability in providing the intelligent and efficient labor that would meet the unique needs and requirements of every business. Filipinos are very proficient in the English language and they have high intellectual capacity. They can easily relate with foreign clients and deliver activities and services with ease and confidence. Outsourcing providers in the country provide benefits not only to their client companies but, more importantly, largely assist in the growth and development of the Philippine nation.

BPO in the Philippines is one of the fastest growing and the largest revenue generating industries of the country. Because of the efficiency of the Philippines staff, there is a current surge in the industry and it is now gearing to knowledge process outsourcing, or KPO. It is expected that the outsourcing business in the Philippines will continue to flourish and grow.
