Where to Find the Best New York Hotel Deals by DJ Willis

Article published on December 12th 2011 | Travel Tips

Many people possess a plan for their vacation so they need to make some choices. They are able to live in an affordable motor court such as the Bates Motel so there will be more money to invest on everyday living; or you can spend all your money on safe 5 star accommodations and never leave the hotel property. This can be a tough choice but there is something that you can do about it.

Using the web, you can find cheap hotel rates that may not be advertised. Over 135,000 hotels may list last minute specials and deals when they've got cancellations. You may also check the rates in over 60 countries worldwide. It's not difficult to find nice and affordable lodging and still have money left over for sightseeing and tourist attractions.

The poor economy has forced everyone to locate cheaper methods for doing the same things. Often you are able to plan your vacation for off-peak times. You will have to do some research to find out when the off peak times are for several vacation destinations. Lodging in Hawaii is usually cheaper early in the year (April to June) as well as in the autumn (September to November).

It's not unusual to find cheap hotel rates in the heart of the week. Popular vacation spots routinely have more affordable room rates during the week than on weekends when many folks are searching for a weekend getaway. You may also read hotel reviews from people who have gotten deals one way or another and follow their advice.

This is the Information Age, so finding cheap hotel rates could be quick and virtually painless, but there are a few things to be familiar with. You may want to consider booking at the last second, because rates are often reduced substantially during the last minutes so they will have no empty rooms. There is a risk though -- when there is a major convention or event in town they may sell out completely.

Your debit card company may form a partnership with certain hotels to promote travel to certain parts of the country. If you find a great deal this way the only requirement is usually to pay with your debit card. If you call the hotel directly you might get an additional discount that does not show up on their national website.

If you're traveling for business, there are many hotels that cater to business travelers more so than vacationers. These are typically higher priced throughout the weekdays than on weekends. You might want to think about a vacation hotel during the week for affordable hotel rates. When you do check in for your hotel ask for a free upgrade. You will get a bigger room with a better view. At least you get more bang for your hotel buck.

Whether you are vacationing with your family or going it alone, finding a cheap hotel makes good financial sense. Most hotels have a value match guarantee so you know you're going to get the lowest price. There are also loyalty rewards programs which you could earn free nights or other discounts.
