Weddings are beautiful, emotional times in the lives of not just the bride to be and groom, but all of the attendants, friends and family involved with it. That's why planning a bachelorette and bachelor party that will permit all involved to let off steam, relax and enjoy yourself is really important to the general procedure for the wedding.

Women are claiming their time now. In the past, only the men enjoyed the bachelor parties, however these days women are taking out all of the stops too. It's a time for you to enjoy life with your single friends one last time, benefit from the attention that wearing bachelorette party t-shirts and tiaras attract or simply have some fun and relax after months of planning the big day. Picking out a wedding dress, bridal shoes and invitations can take a lot of time and energy, so this is a great time to relax.

So, what actually constitutes a bachelorette party the ultimate in female fun? Part of it may be the spontaneous fun that breaks out when good friends are together. A part of the bride's fun is that the party is thrown in her honor, without any other person to share the lime light. She can wear the bachelorette t-shirts, the sashes, the tiaras or other things that designates her and her friends as the ones being envied.

Part of the fun which comes from hosting or attending a bachelorette party is definitely the outrageous fun that is had unlike every other girl's night out before. Inhibitions are thrown out the window, wild fun can be had and everyone simply laughs, smiles and chuckles wistfully. For some attendees, it might be their first ride inside an open topped limo or even the first chance in ages to let their hair down.

There are as many different types of bachelorette parties as are people who attend them. Some gals like to trip the light, fantastic with dancing til dawn at all the coolest clubs, sporting their bachelorette t-shirts, raucous manner and irrepressible energy. Still others would rather take a trip to Vegas, enjoying the culinary delights, the intense lights along with a limo ride.

A weekend away is often the solution to a lower key bachelorette party. The girlfriends may all escape to some lakeside cabin, a resort sporting massages, manicures and pedicures for those or perhaps a chance to be a kid again at Disney World or the beach. It's all up to people involved.

If you are planning the bachelorette party, there are many issues you should consider first. Consider who's going to be attending this girl's night or weekend out. Are all the women single and ready to party? Or, will the mom of the bride, the cousin from out of town that nobody knows and some young junior bridesmaids be coming along too?

When planning the party, talk to the bride to be first and settle on the guest list. Get her input on what she deems fun. Then, think about the budget of those attending and work out your plans from there. Providing party favors like bachelorette t-shirts, disposable cameras and champagne flutes using the guests names on them are a great extra touch that each and every one will love and remember.
